German Divisions Trapped In Ukraine

TEN German divisions (120,000 men) have been trapped and 300 towns taken in a five days' Russian offensive in the Ukraine, where the armies of Generals Koniev and Vatutin have advanced 50 miles and joined up in the Middle Dnieper sector, states a Marshal Stalin Order of the Day, issued last night in Moscow.

A Berlin message says that the Germans have abandoned Rovno and Luck. Ankara Radio stated last night that the Russians have captured the Germans' Baltic outpost, Narva.

Marshal Stalin's Order of the Day stated: "Troops of the second Ukranian front, having gone over to the offensive north of Kirovograd, in a westerly direction, and troops of the first Ukranian front, having taken the offensive south-east of Byela-Tserkov, in an easterly direction, have broken through strongly fortified enemy defence lines, and in five days' fighting advanced to link up in the area Zvenigorodka-Shpola, thereby closing the ring surrounding the enemy group operating north of the line, which includes nine infantry divisions and one tank division In the course of this offensive our troops liberated more than 300 inhabited localities, including the towns of Zvenigorodka, Shpola, Smyela, Boguslav, Kanev, and the large railway junctions of Bobrinskaya, Tsvetkovo and Mironovka."

Zvenigorodka is nearly 70 miles S.-E. of Byelayatserkov and, roughly, the same distance north-west of Kirovograd. Railways link it with these towns, and also with Uman to the south-west. Shpola is about 20 miles east-south-east of Zvenigorodka and about 45 miles south-west of Cherkassy. Smyela is an important rail junction 20 miles S.-W. of Cherkassy. Boguslav is 50 miles S.-E. of Byelaya Tserkov. Kanev, head of a big German salient abutting on to the middle Dnieper, is about 70 miles downstream from Kiev, and about 40 miles N.-W. of Cherkassy. Tsvetkovo is 38 miles S.-W. of Cherkassy. Mironovka is 25 miles S.-W. of Kanev, and is the hub of a network of railways.

ABANDONED

Moscow has so far thrown no light on yesterday's official German report of General Vatutin's advance into pre-war Southern Poland. According to Berlin, not only has Rovno (35 miles west of the frontier) been abandoned, but Luck (or Lutsk—another 40 miles to the west) as well, states Reuter.

Throughout the week the Germans have been reporting a powerful Russian offensive on this front below the Pripet marshes.

Luck is 50 miles south-east of the big Kovel rail junction and about 90 north-east of Lwow. Its fall would mean that Vatutin's drive is now half-way across the Volhyn province on the northern front.

The official Soviet communiqué reported the capture of 50 places in the Narva direction, including Slantisi, 2 miles from the Estonian border; other places including the railway station of Rogatka, S.W. and south of Lyuban; Abovo and other localities west of Novo-Sokolniki, and advances south of Siverskaya and west and S.W. of Novgorod.

Ankara Radio stated that Soviet forces have already captured Narva.

Reuter's Special Correspondent in Moscow cables that three Soviet columns are closing in on Narva. In the centre a big tank and artillery force is moving along the main road and railway from Leningrad. North of the town Soviet forces, after clearing out Germans from the region of the Luga River Estuary, are now close to the Narva River, which, at this point, is 8 miles inside Estonia. Another thrust is developing from the south along the road from Pskov to Narva. Russian spearheads here have captured Slantsi, terminus for a branch railway to Pskov.

The clearing of the coast up to the mouth of the Narva has radically altered the position of the Soviet Baltic Fleet in the Gulf of Finland. It has gained considerable freedom of manœuvre, and can now seriously threaten sea communications between Germany and Finland. The Finnish-held Island of Lavansaari and the twin Islands of Tyutarsaari, midway between Viborg and Narva Bays, are now exposed to attack. Their occupation would interfere with overseas supplies for the Finnish troops standing north of Leningrad.

The position of the German forces between Lake Peipus and Lake Ilmen, is nearing desperation. These forces have been split into two groups.

Strategically significant, in view of the developments on the Leningrad and Volkhov fronts, is the Russians' substantial progress west of Novo Sokolniki in the direction of the Latvian border. "The Germans are as powerless to alter anything in the course of events in this direction as they were to save Paulus's Army at Stalingrad a year ago," says the Soviet commentator, Colonel Akimov.

A German High Command spokesman stated last night in Berlin, according to Reuter, that, in a new offensive N.W. of Vitebsk, the Soviets attacked on a front of 7½ miles on both sides of Lake Saaronovskoye. "One enemy penetration was immediately eliminated. North of Nevel the Soviets attacked more than 20 times. A number of penetrations were soon sealed off.

"Very heavy enemy attacks have also been launched north of the Nikopol bridgehead. Wave after wave of Russian formations were hurled into the fighting and German troops were forced to abandon some ground."

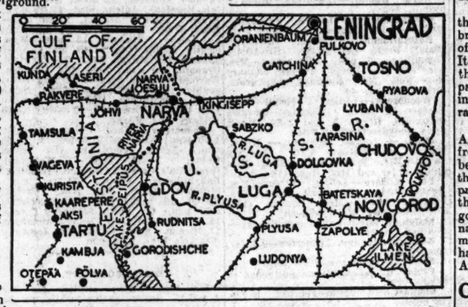
25,000,000 CASUALTIES

THE Baltimore Evening Sun said yesterday that military experts and civilian observers estimate that total Allied and Axis casualties in this war will exceed 25,000,000. Those of the United States have been less than those of any other nation, it added. The British figure, including civilians, is estimated at five times that of the United States.

For the U.S. the Sun listed a total of 146,186—including 33,153 dead, 49,518 wounded, 33,617 missing and 29,898 prisoners of war until February 1st, 1944.

British military casualties were listed at 514,933 up until September 3rd, 1943, with 92,089 killed, 226,719 wounded, 88,294 missing, and 107,891 prisoners of war.



Government Survey of Building Projects

IN view of the difficult conditions which may be expected to arise in the building industry in the post-war period, the Government has decided to make an immediate survey of all building and constructional projects contemplated for that period.

As will be seen by an advertisement in to-day's Irish Times, it is intended to form a first priority list, and to consider for admission to that list only such projects as are at a stage where work can be commenced forthwith. In view of the anticipated shortages in material and labour, it is intended to plan a building programme to ensure that the resources available will be utilised for the most urgent and important purposes, that the excess of demand over supply will not have an undue influence on costs, and, at the same time, that full and expeditious use will be made of all materials, equipment, and labour which can be employed.

First place in the priority programme will be given to projects of greatest urgency and national importance, subject to all preliminary work, including the acquisition of sites, having been completed. This control will cover both public and private building, so as to ensure that activities will proceed uniformly, so far as possible, in all parts of the country.

Firms and individuals who have urgent buildings works on which they wish to engage after the war are urged to study the advertisement and comply with the conditions promptly, otherwise they may be excluded from the first priority list. The control extends to all kinds of buildings, including farm buildings, factories, private houses, etc.

ARCHITECT'S ROLE

The setting up of a building research station as a means of securing that all relevant knowledge and research find their way quickly into actual building practice, was advocated by Mr. Vincent Kelly, President of the Royal Institute of the Architects of Ireland, in his inaugural address at a general meeting of that body in Dublin last night. Another point urged by Mr. Kelly was the promotion of an Architects' Registration Bill.

The work of post-war years would demand great expansion in the building industry. Architects were the back-bone of the industry, but they were not cognisant of their rôle as creative working members of a great industrial community.

Mr. Kelly emphasised the danger of short-circuiting architectural advice and experience in the solution of the fresh and inspiring problems which the country's welfare demanded now and after the war.

They were, he said, fighting an up-hill battle against a system of public education which had not the slightest understanding of architecture. In Sweden and Switzerland the education systems had a strong artistic bias, and, in consequence, there existed in those countries a great national architecture and a national understanding of it. As to pre-fabrication, modern technique and substitute materials, there was the danger that these might oust not only the architect from his job, but the craftsman from the industry.

"I believe," Mr. Kelly concluded, "that when we go forward to a time of peaceful reconstruction, we shall not give up the use of traditional materials and fine craftsmanship."

Allies Battle For Three Towns in Italy

BITTER fighting is raging in the towns of Cisterna, Campo Leone and Cassino, Reuter's special correspondent cables from Allied Headquarters in Italy.

Street fighting is going on in Cassino, according to Cairo Radio. "Tanks have forced a break-through and Allied infantry is pouring into the town."

Bitter fighting is raging in the outskirts of Cisterna and Campo Leone, and General Alexander's assault forces, pushing up the two main bridgehead roads, are now engaged with strong German forces, headed by Panzer shock groups, Reuter's correspondent cables. More than 50 miles to the east, on the main front, the fall of Cassino—pivot of the breached Gustav Line—is imminent. American troops almost ringing the monastery fortress are only 500 yards from the main streets.

Allied 'planes ahead of the Fifth Army striking force are now smashing Cisterna, this correspondent states. The Allied troops have extended the bridgehead, but details are scanty. Marshal Kesselring has put strong forces, mostly drawn down from north of Rome, into the struggle. He is still building up his strength, and here, it is thought, that the main counter-attack has yet to come.

Troops on the Fifth Army's right flank have beaten off a German counter-attack from the Littoria area, the third in this sector since the landing, but precise news of the bridgehead operations is lacking.

Rome Radio last night described the battle now raging in the Nettuno bridgehead as "the greatest battle of give and take ever fought on Italian soil." According to Reuter, the radio message stated:—"The pace of the battle is hot, and in the past few hours fighting has raged with exceptional fury."

Guenther Weber, a German News Agency war reporter on the Cisterna front, wrote last night: "I have been through the hell of Cisterna. I therefore say it approaches the improbable that soldiers can endure the artillery barrage which has been going on for days from the heavy naval gun down to the trench mortar. Every fire-spouting weapon has been concentrated by the Americans on the Cisterna sector."

CASSINO BATTLE

Cassino is being battered by artillery and swept by rifle fire, states Reuter's Special Correspondent, but the Germans have not yet given up. They are replying with every weapon they have. Americans swinging round north of the town towards the Rome road threaten to cut off the garrison, whose situation hourly becomes more precarious.

Americans and French, in the past 24 hours, have widened the Gustav Line breach, and now ring the town from the heights to the north-east, less than a mile away. The frontal assault force at one point has only 500 yards to go.

North of the Gustav Line breach the French have seized new heights, including the northern slopes of Colle Abate. French and Americans are mopping up Monte Manna and are close to Terelle itself. Above Cassino the French and American advance continues.

From the Eighth Army front only patrol activity is reported.

Dive-bombers are bombing and strafing airfields, road convoys, supply dumps, and roads around Rome.

Algiers Radio reported last night that United States forces have captured Castellone, and penetrated into the village of Terelle, while other American forces have delivered a frontal attack on the Rapido Valley. —(Reuter.)

Kesselring Lost 180 'Planes

Mr. Robert Patterson, United States Under-Secretary for War, stated yesterday in Washington that the Allied Air Forces have shot down at least 180 'planes over Italy since January 27th, for the loss of 26 Allied aircraft.

"The message, quoted by Reuter, also stated that casualties to American units of the Fifth Army since the beginning of the Italian campaign, and including those so far suffered in the new landings south of Rome, totalled 23,407, consisting of 3,384 killed, 14,879 wounded, and 5,144 missing.

1,100 'Planes in Daylight Raid

Heavy bombers of the United States Strategic Air Force in Europe, escorted by long-range fighters of the American Army Air Force, attacked targets at Wilhelmshaven yesterday. The attacking force, including bombers and fighters, numbered more than 1,100.

The Press Association states that the tonnage dropped on Wilhelmshaven yesterday was probably at least 1,500. Up to 700 Fortresses and Liberators are being used in assaults of this scale.

In addition to its shipbuilding, Wilhelmshaven is one of the operational bases used by the German North Sea Fleet.

The British Air Ministry communiqué yesterday stated:—"Last night Mosquitos of Bomber Command attacked objectives in Western Germany. Mines were also laid in enemy waters.

"None of our aircraft is missing."

R.A.F. medium bombers (Marauders), escorted and covered by R.A.F. Dominion and Allied fighters bombed military objectives in Northern France yesterday.

The Marauders, unchallenged by German fighters, returned without loss, state United States Headquarters and the British Air Ministry News Service.

In the morning R.A.F. Typhoon fighter-bombers, one of which is missing, destroyed three barges off the Dutch coast.

An "alert" was sounded in London last night, the first since Saturday. The "alert" was brief.

There was gunfire in the Thames Estuary area, but no incidents were reported in London.

AMERICAN SUCCESS IN MARSHALLS

AMERICAN forces have captured the island of Namur, in the Kwajalein Atoll, in the Marshall Islands, it was officially announced last night, according to a Reuter telegram from Pearl Harbour.

Several adjacent islands in the Marshalls have also been captured.

The text reads: "Our forces have captured Namur and several adjacent islands. Resistance continues on Kwajalein, but we have landed troops and mechanised equipment in force, and are proceeding with the annihilation of the enemy."

A spokesman at headquarters here said that Japanese dead counted on Kwajalein alone up to last night totalled 1,250. Known American dead last night were 27, with nine missing and 190 wounded. Preliminary estimates for the Roi-Namur area, the spokesman said, indicated that American losses were less than 100 killed and 400 wounded.

Besides Namur, Gagan, Ebjell, Bebun and Edgigen Islands were also captured.

Initial successes in the Marshalls have encouraged a belief in the United States that the campaign against Japan can be speeded-up beyond previous expectations. Following a statement made in Washington yesterday by Mr. Robert Patterson, United States Under-Secretary for War, that the United Nations are now prepared to attack Japan's inner defences, military observers in Washington said that it was plain that the doctrine that Japan must wait until Germany had been crushed has been modified. One observer said: "We are now ready to conduct the war on a global basis. The striking power of the United Nations has grown to such proportions that the European and Pacific wars can be conducted separately and simultaneously."

Mr. Robert Patterson, in his statement, described the invasion of the Marshall Islands as creating a breach in Japanese defences through which the Allies have planned to advance on the Philippines and to Tokyo.

"Fighting is continuing, and our troops are making excellent progress," he said. "Success in the Marshall Islands will enable us to attack the Japanese inner defences. We are now widening the cracks in the Japanese Empire outer defences. Preliminary reports reveal the fine co-ordination achieved by our land, sea and air forces."

Mr. Patterson indicated he had little expectation that the Japanese Fleet would come out to give battle to the huge American armada in the Marshall Islands area. "Previous successes of our Navy have probably made the Japanese cautious, if not actually timid," he said.

Mr. Patterson described the concentration of American naval forces off the Marshalls as the greatest in the history of warfare.

LATEST SHIPS

The newest American 16-inch gun battleships took part in the three-day-and-night bombardment of Kwajalein, says Reuter's special correspondent on board the U.S. flagship off Kwajalein. Secret mechanised landing craft, only recently turned out by the United States, were used.

Headquarters of the 7th United States Army Air Force at Honolulu announced yesterday that over 3,500,000 lbs. of bombs were dropped on the Marshall Islands before the invasion.

The United States columnist, Raymond Clapper, has been killed in the Marshall Islands, it is officially announced in Washington.

Clapper's 'plane collided with another 'plane while forming up. Clapper, who was covering the Marshalls invasion, was in the 'plane with the Squadron Commander. Both 'planes crashed in the lagoon. There were no survivors.

SPANISH NEUTRALITY

GENERAL FRANCO yesterday presided at a meeting of the Spanish Cabinet, at which Spain's strict neutrality was ratified.

The general excitement and uneasiness have subsided since the first days of the crisis, when the Allies were believed to have demanded the use of Spanish bases, and the uninformed public had begun to fear that Spain might be forced to enter the war without knowing on which side she would fight, says the Madrid Correspondent of The Times (per Press Association).

Sir Samuel Hoare, the British Ambassador, said on Wednesday, adds the correspondent:—"Far from wishing to bring Spain into the war, the Allies wish to see Spain remain neutral. It is also clear from its public statements and assurances that the Spanish Government also wishes to keep Spain neutral. If this is so, and Spain is really neutral, there need be no trouble between the Allies and the Spanish Government. That is all that we want, and that Spain should not be used by Germany for attacks upon the Allies. Upon this basis I believe present differences between the Governments can be satisfactorily settled."

Producer-Gas Lorry Owners' Complaint

Another transport problem which is becoming acute is that of the allowance of petrol to owners of lorries running on producer gas. This was for a time fixed at 20 gallons, but has recently been reduced to two gallons. The present allowance is considered by lorry-owners to be quite inadequate, especially on the bad, hilly roads characteristic of a great part of the West of Ireland. A Limerick lorry-owner said that his two vehicles in the last month, in which the allowance had been 20 gallons per lorry, had covered 3,169 miles, whereas G.S.R. lorries in the district would have required at least 260 gallons to do a similar amount of work.

A member of a Dublin firm engaged in making producer-gas equipment, said that he could not agree that two gallons was an adequate allowance. In the special conditions of the West of Ireland, where the lorries ran on rough roads through bogs and over mountains, petrol would be needed for boosting as well as for starting, and if stoppages were frequent there would, of course, be need for a greater allowance. If a driver had ignition trouble he might use the whole of his two-gallon allowance in one day. In such circumstances he thought that an allowance of ten gallons a month would not be excessive.

Served by Irish Trade Mark

In spite of difficulties in almost every direction, users of the Irish trade mark have continued their support of the Association, realising that they are advancing and safeguarding their interests, says the 38th annual report of the Irish Industrial Development Association, read at the annual meeting in Dublin yesterday by the President, Mr. George Shackleton, jun. The report expressed regret at the death of Miss Sarah Purser, R.H.A., a member of the Council of the Association since its inception, and Vice-President for many years.

Criticised By Own Party

"I have had the most unfortunate experience with my own party," said Mr. Bevin, British Minister of Labour, in the House of Commons yesterday during a debate on the Reinstatement in Civil Employment Bill. "They have criticised me very severely on occasions, but no one can ever say that I have kicked the ball into my own net since I have been in the Coalition."

Bob Martin, founder of the famous firm which bears his name, celebrated his 70th birthday by giving £1,000 to the Southport Infirmary.

WIDESPREAD RENTS RAMP CHECKED

OF the innumerable Orders issued under the Government's Emergency Powers during the past four and a half years possibly none caused such varied comment as the Rent Restriction Order announced yesterday, writes an Irish Times reporter.

As was anticipated, nothing but wholehearted approval came from householders. Some landlords, however, thought that the Order might put them out of business. Most city house agents chose the middle course, and declined to make any comment pending the publication to-day of the terms of the Order.

For the Government Publications Office in College street the Order meant one of their busiest mornings in months, as several hundred solicitors, property owners, auctioneers and house agents crowded into the premises seeking copies.

Government officials were reticent about the reasons for the Order, but from other inquiries it seems clear that Government action was taken only when the Minister had satisfied himself that there was foundation for many complaints reaching his Department that a rente ramp was widespread in Dublin and parts of County Dublin and some country districts. It was believed, too, that there was a likelihood that abuses would occur with greater frequency.

UPWARD TREND

Complaints that some landlords were, unjustifiably, "jumping" rents came to the Department of Justice from many parts of the country. Most of them came from Dublin, and that was the reason why the new Order is designed primarily to cope with abuses in Dublin County Borough and the Borough of Dun Laoghaire. The only other place where there were outstanding offenders was Limerick City.

In some instances rents had been increased as much as 20 per cent. Under the new Order, however, landlords who have charged excessive rents will be compelled to repay to their tenants any excess over the lawful rents (determined on the basis of the known 1941 rent) received.

Commenting on the newspaper summary of the Order, one landlord termed it "most unfair" that no provision had, apparently, been made to cover increased expenditure on maintenance of property. A house which cost £20 to paint externally in 1941, he said, now cost £40. What, he asked, was to happen to the enterprising landlord who had expended many hundreds of pounds converting a house into modern flats. Assuming that the house and similar adjoining property were normally let at £110 per annum, were the flats to be let at proportionate rents? The Order, he asserted, probably would result in more houses coming on the property market, as landlords would be more inclined to sell rather than to continue renting.

LONG LEASES

Mr. Raymond Judd, of Messrs. Battersby's, commented on the newspaper summary as follows: "It strikes me that it is a pity that the Government have dealt with the question by means of an Emergency Powers Order rather than by introducing a bill which they have had in contemplation for two or three years past. The Order makes for security to everybody concerned. There are, however, disadvantages. Properties that were let on long-term leases, even thirty or forty years ago, will now be coming into their owners' hands, and these owners, making such leases at moderate rates at that time, will be seriously affected by conditions which were not contemplated at the time of making the agreement.

"Whereas houses over the £20 and £30 poor law valuation refer back to May, 1941, for their 'Standard Rent,' houses under these valuations have to refer back to 1914—which seems a little archaic and out of tune with present conditions relating to repairs, costs of material, labour, etc."

New Party May Be "National" Labour

THE new Labour group in the Dail (Messrs. Pattison, Everett, Looney, O'Leary, and Spring, members of the Irish Transport Workers' Union), it is understood, will be styled the National Labour Party. When the Dail meets, they will sit apart from Mr. Norton's group. They have taken rooms in South Frederick street, and are seeking accommodation in Leinster House apart from the present Labour room.

A reporter learned last night that the resignations of certain persons in key positions in the Labour movement in Dublin, who are alleged to have leanings towards Communism, are expected. Meanwhile, unusual interest is being taken in the forthcoming report of the Labour Party Committee set up to inquire into the extent of the infiltration of Communism. That communistic elements had entered the Labour Party was one of the chief issues in the dispute between the Irish Transport Workers' Union and the Party. A reporter was told that, if necessary, concrete evidence could be adduced indicative of communistic influences in the party.

Mr. Aiken's Call For More Food

They wanted to be in the position, no matter what happened, to be able to feed their own people, said Mr. Frank Aiken, Minister for the Co-ordination of Defensive Measures, at Lifford yesterday. While Donegal held a leading position in the production of oats, potatoes and flax, he said, it fell far short in its requirements of wheat and rye. Last year it produced only one-seventh of its bread grain. He hoped this year they would reap nearly all the bread cereals required for human consumption in the county. The shortage would have to be filled by transporting wheat from the Midlands.

The economic and transport problem emphasised the flagrant injustice that was done by the imposition of partition. Cereals for bread and potatoes for human consumption should be provided before other crops were planted for stock feeding. It was the height of folly to depend upon selling live stock in order to buy bread which the farmers of the country could, and should, produce for themselves.

State of Kerry Roads

Kerry County Council has been warned by the Minister for Local Government that, in view of the report of the County Surveyor (Mr. T. F. Ryan) on the deplorable condition of the main roads and the reduction by them of sums required for proper maintenance, the roads would present a very substantial problem.

The County Surveyor's report showed him that the failures of the Council to make proper provision had necessitated the substantial sum now required. He deferred taking action on the evidence given at the inquiry into the performance of its duties by the Council. On receipt of a resolution agreeing to make provision for road maintenance in accordance with the County Surveyor's estimate he would arrange to recoup forty per cent. expenditure on main roads, to consider making a grant not exceeding £25,000 towards surfacing roads subject to turf traffic, and to agree to a short term loan for re-surfacing roads subject to general traffic.

Amendments To Education Bill

Catholic M.P.s last night tabled 15 amendments to the British Education Bill. Their financial amendments will not be ready until later, says the Press Association Lobby Correspondent. Already there are 400 other amendments on the Order Paper, and two days will be devoted to them at the next sittings.

Great Battles Coming

General Marshall, United States Chief of Staff, declared last night that great battles were impending in Europe, where the bulk of Allied ground and air forces would be concentrated. The Marshall Islands campaign was only a preview of more action in the Pacific.

Stating that Berlin is now a shambles, he said that more than 2,000 American heavy bombers are being used against Germany and Occupied Europe.

"The Allied avalanche is at last in motion, and it will make further headway with each succeeding month," he added.—(Reuter.)

£462 Fine in Dundalk

How a farm labourer, driving a pony and van, was stopped by Customs officers near the border at Hackballscross, Co. Louth, and port wine worth £40 and silk ribbon valued at £110 taken from him, was told at Dundalk District Court, when Patrick Hanratty, Ramsan, pleaded guilty to bringing the goods to a place for exportation.

He was fined £462 by District Justice Molloy, who recommended a reduction owing to the financial position of Hanratty, and the fact that he was only a carrier of the goods.

Kerry Lorry Owners Test G.S.R. Scheme

THE road transport confusion created in Co. Kerry, during the bringing into operation of the Great Southern Railways Company's monopoly in the last few days, was largely straightened out yesterday by the drafting of additional lorries into the area and the arrival of officials with operational knowledge.

An Irish Times reporter, 'phoning from Tralee last night, said that yesterday the lorry owners tried out the company's arrangements and hired the G.S.R. lorries, leaving their own at home. The result was general satisfaction, so far as can be ascertained. While retaining their antagonism to monopoly, the lorry owners have to admit that the company, so far, has given them good service for their money.

The lorries were hired yesterday on a basis of so much per ton per mile, and, apparently, this works out at something less than what it costs to run a lorry privately. The lorry owners, therefore, on the present scale of charges under the scheme, gain by using the company's lorries. However, they distrust the company's ability to carry on at the present rates, and anticipate an increase in the charges.

NO HITCH

The hiring of the company's lorries by the owners yesterday was a test of the new system, and the vehicles were taken over a number of roads which it had been believed the company's representatives would not allow lorries to travel. Everything went without a hitch, and the owners were satisfied, from the material aspect of the matter at least.

At Killorglin, which is an important centre for the distribution of turf to most of the large towns of Munster, the number of lorries available from the company on February 1st and 2nd was inadequate, but yesterday three more were drafted in, and all requirements were met.

As regards timber, no arrangements have been made so far, though the hauliers in the area do a considerable business in this fuel. There seems to be some hitch in the haulage of limestone, but the season of the year to some extent would justify the company in restricting the use of lorries in this work.

The lorry owners have laid up their own lorries because they refuse to accept the rates offered by the G.S.R. as not sufficiently remunerative when private lorries are used. They are content to hire the company's vehicles at the present rates.

ACCEPTANCE

Beneath the protestations of the owners about the invasion of their rights, the hard undercurrent of business is strong, and, if the company can make the scheme attractive enough, there seems to be little difficulty in the way of general acceptance in the county.

The reactions of Labour, which is directly affected, are difficult to put a finger on. Mr. Dan Spring, Labour T.D. for this district, refused to make any statement yesterday, saying that the matter would be considered at the annual meeting of the local branch of the I.T. and G.W.U. in a week's time. Members of the branch appear hostile to the scheme, as some of the lorry men in the county are already reported to be out of work.

An official of the railway company told our Tralee representative yesterday that "the company have plenty of lorries to meet all road transport requirements now and for the future."

At least fifty motor lorries have gone off the road in Clare since the monopoly scheme came into operation on Monday. It is stated that as a result about 100 men have been disemployed.

Turf Production Losses in Cork

The County Manager (Mr. J. F. Wrenne) informed Cork County Council yesterday that the final prices for turf cut in 1941 and 1942 had now been determined. In 1941 the amount of saleable turf produced was 28,740 tons, and production cost 39s. 11d. per ton. In 1942 the figures were 20,407 tons and 33s. 2d. per ton. Fuel Importers Ltd., and local authorities were being charged at the adjusted prices. There was a loss of £7,273 on the 1941 production, and of £12,280 on the 1942 production, caused mainly by sales below production costs to private persons, against whom they could not now proceed.

The Acting County Surveyor (Mr. O'Donnell) said that about 7,000 tons of the 1941 turf remained in the bogs, and was unsaleable.

The Chairman said that the losses had been much less than he anticipated.

A sub-committee was appointed to investigate the case of one bog, where production cost had risen from 24s. 6d. per unit in 1941 to 76s. in 1943.

Fish Prices Fall

Fish was cheaper and more plentiful yesterday. The only scarce variety was black sole, which brought 5s. 6d. per lb. Salmon, now plentiful, was about 2s. 6d. a lb.; last week's price was 6s. per lb. Other prices were: Filleted plaice, 5s. 6d.; cod steaks, 3s. 4d. and 3s. 6d.; and filleted whiting, 2s. 10d.

U-Boat Sunk

The United States Navy Department last night reported the sinking in the Mediterranean of a German U-boat by the British destroyer Calpe and the American destroyer Wainwright.—(Reuter.)

Protest By Bishop

In his capacity as Vicar-delegate to the United States forces, Most Rev. Dr. Farren, Bishop of Derry, last night addressed the following letter to Mr. William Lowry, Northern Ireland Minister of Home Affairs:—

"Sir, — As representative in Northern Ireland of Archbishop Spellman, Archbishop of New York and Ordinary of the United States forces, I wish to protest against what, if the Press reports are correct, can be regarded only as a gross insult offered by you to the American Catholic Chaplains exercising their sacred functions, and the Catholic men who were present, by your reference in Stormont to the fumigating of a hall in which Mass was said for the United States forces."

CORK CRITICISM

Resentment was expressed at the Cork County Council meeting yesterday at the statement attributed to Mr. Lowry, Minister of Home Affairs in the Northern Ireland Parliament, on Wednesday, that an Orange hall in which Mass had been celebrated for the forces was to be fumigated.

Mr. E. Cotter, who proposed a resolution of protest, said the remark was an insult to their creed and to their nation, and was made by a Minister of a puppet Parliament in part of the nation's ancient territory.

Mr. T. T. O'Sullivan, T.D., said they knew that the Northern Ireland Parliament catered for one particular creed, but such an insult to Catholics everywhere should not be allowed to go without protest.

The Chairman, Mr. W. J. Broderick, T.D., said it was very difficult to take very much cognisance of a benighted individual steeped in bigotry, like their friend Lowry. He thought such emanations from such a man should be treated with contempt.

Mr. T. J. Murphy, T.D., said he did not object to the resolution of protest, but he hoped that in passing it they were not exaggerating the importance of the Northern Parliament or of the people who made contributions of that kind to its discussions.

Mr. Cotter's resolution was declared passed unanimously.

British Frigate Lost

The British Board of Admiralty announced last night that the frigate H.M.S. Tweed (Lieut.-Commander R. S. Miller) has been lost. The next-of-kin of casualties have been informed. It is understood that Lieut.-Commander Miller is among the survivors, states a P.A. naval correspondent.

RID HIM OF THAT SCRATCHING

'Dog Was in Torment'

"Our little dog scratched and bit herself so much that sores broke out. I started giving her Bob Martin's and now she is completely cured—a truly happy dog and in perfect condition." Mrs. I.P.D.

Maybe you've often thought "I wish I could cure my dog of scratching." Well, 'cure' is the right word. For scratching is the result of a blood disorder that calls for prompt treatment. When dogs were wild they instinctively sought out certain rare grasses and herbs which Nature intended as blood cleansers. Now it presents with you to purify your dog's blood by giving him Bob Martin's Condition Powders.

In winter especially, when short days and uncertain weather prevent your dog from getting his regular exercise, a daily Bob Martin's is essential to his health.

For these famous powders ensure the pure rich bloodstream which is the foundation of winter fitness. Given regularly, they will make (and keep) your dog a 'plus' dog—and he'll repay you with a companionship closer and cheerier than ever. Start conditioning now! You can get Bob Martin's in packets, 6d and 1/- from chemists and corn merchants.

OUT OF ARMY WITH GASTRIC ULCERS

Gets "Certain Relief" from Rennies

Although gastric ulcers led to his discharge from the army, this ex-soldier found a way to obtain relief from them. He is anxious that others should know of it, too, and writes:—

"I have pleasure in writing to tell you of the wonderful and certain relief I obtain through taking Rennies. I have recently been discharged from the army with gastric ulcers, which I must admit is very unpleasant. I always carry a good supply of Rennies, and when I do get the pain, I am sure of relief if I take one or two. I have recommended Rennies to a good many people, who in turn have spoken very well of them."—F.C.P.

Digestif Rennies work in three ways. They contain antacids which neutralise acidity, absorbents which reduce stomach gas, and digestive ferments which actively aid digestion. Rennies dissolve in the mouth. They become active at once, because they reach your stomach full strength—not weakened with water.

Rennies are recommended by 1,198 doctors. All chemists sell them, price 7d. and 2/- per packet.

No Coupons for Cardigan

Allegations that an inspector of the Department of Supplies tried to trap a trader into committing an offence were made at Dundalk Districts Court, when Mrs. Mary O'Meara and her daughter, Miss Nora, of Omeath, Co. Louth, were prosecuted for selling a cardigan to a woman inspector without coupons. The evidence was that this inspector bought the cardigan while the shop was open on a Sunday, paid 26/- for it, and did not have any coupons.

A solicitor produced a statement made by Mrs. O'Meara later, in which she said that she had previously bought the cardigan in Dublin. Cross-examined by Mr. Nolan Woods, solicitor, she further said that on an earlier occasion he had gone to Mrs. O'Meara's shop and attempted to make a detection. She added: Did you tell Mrs. O'Meara something that was completely false and misleading?—Yes.

Justice Molloy fined Mrs. O'Meara £1 and her daughter 10/-, and ordered them to pay 26/6 expenses.

Handbag Theft Alleged

Mrs. Annie Domican (27), Basin street, was returned for trial by District Justice Hannan, in Dublin yesterday, on a charge of stealing from Clarendon Street Church a handbag and contents, valued at £187, the property of Mrs. Maura O'Meara, and also of a bank deposit receipt for £1,000, the property of Mrs. O'Meara's husband. A silver cigarette case, silver vanity case, and other articles in the handbag were found by two nine-year-old boys in the cellar of the house, 27 Stephen street, when they were searching for a ball.

Another Rugby Victory For Leinster?

By Our Rugby Football Correspondent.

CONNAUGHT pay their return visit to Leinster to-morrow, and if only they could play as well as they did in the first match at the sports ground in Galway last November, the spectators would have excellent value for their money. On that occasion Leinster won by 19 points to 15, but Connaught took the honours of the day. Unfortunately, the men from the West never seem to be able to find that tear-away spirit in Dublin which infects them on their own soil, and Leinster should hold a sufficient advantage behind the scrum to win comfortably.

The strongest team available was chosen by the home selectors, but G. Quinn is unable to turn out, and his absence will deprive Leinster of their outstanding back, both in attack and defence. The centre to replace him will not be selected until to-day. Still, Aherne and Coveney will probably give Moran and Burke, on the left wing, scoring opportunities. The pack is a solid and well-established one, the only newcomer being the highly-considered forward from Blackrock College, Lt. T. Russell.

Connaught have replaced C. Finan in the centre with M. McLaverty, who showed promise last season, and, while the back division, as a whole, cannot compare with Leinster's in attack, the forwards can, when in the mood, almost take control of the game, while the defence can be really solid. Still; it does not seem likely that the visitors will rattle this particular Leinster team off their game.

There is a full series of club matches down for decision also, but some teams will be weakened by interprovincial claims. The matches are:—Dublin University v. Old Belvedere, College Park v. U.C.D. v. Clontarf, Belfield; Old Wesley v. Lansdowne, Donnybrook; Monkstown v. Wanderers, Sydney Parade; Blackrock College v. St. Mary's, Williamstown. Palmerston go to Belfast to meet Civil Service, but the Queen's University v. Bective Rangers game, arranged for Belfast, will also take place.

Bective have an attractive fixture against Galway Corinthians at Donnybrook on Sunday. The Corinthians' team includes five of the seven Connaught backs and three of the forwards, so it should be a good game. On the same day Blackrock play Dolphin.

SOUND WESTPORT TEAM.

WESTPORT..... 6 MONKSTOWN... 0

At Sydney Parade yesterday, Westport beat a Monkstown team that was below full strength by 6 points to nil. In victory, Westport had a lively pack, and were also superior behind the scrum. P. Gill got both tries for Westport, and one was converted by P. Ryan. Harte scored for Monkstown.

A FORWARD STRUGGLE.

U.C.D..... 3 N.F.S..... 3

At Castle avenue yesterday University College, Cork, and National Fire Service, Belfast, played a draw, each scoring an unconverted try. U.C.C. were without three of their regular backs, including L. O'Brien; and, with N.F.S. rather weak behind the scrum, most of the play was in the shape of forward exchanges. O. Glasgow scored for N.F.S. and S. Flynn for U.C.C.

FENNING IN BILLIARDS FINAL

S. Fenning (Dublin), former holder of the title, gained a clear-cut win over J. McErlean (Ballymena) (holder) in the first semi-final of the Irish amateur billiards championship at the O'Connell Hall, Dublin, last night, by 500 to 358. Fenning struck his form early, and, with a 47 break, gained a lead of 114-64. McErlean showed steadiness, and held the lead after the 200 mark had been passed, but a break of 47 (45 of the red) regained Fenning his advantage, and, showing consistent form throughout, he reached his points with 39 (unfinished). Best breaks—Fenning 47 (twice), 71, 39 (unfinished), 36, 21 (three times); McErlean—46, 30, 25, 20.

In the first semi-final of the snooker P. Merrigan (Dublin) beat J. McNally (Belfast) by 70-46, 73-30, 83-10.

BALDOYLE 'CHASE

Only three horses — Kilnagiory, Eastern Realm and Donohill—were taken out of the Baldoyle £1,600 Steeplechase at the final acceptance stage on Wednesday. Thus, of the original entry of 29, 18 remain in the race, which will be run on Saturday, February 12th.

TRINITY-ROVERS HOCKEY RE-PLAY

AFTER playing for 110 minutes neither Three Rock Rovers nor Dublin University could register a goal in the Leinster semi-final of the Irish senior hockey cup last Saturday week, and their return meeting to-morrow will form the principal item on the programme of four matches.

The Rovers' attack has fallen away completely in recent games, and unless there is a big improvement there it seems unlikely that they will prevent the holders from going on to the section final against Y.M.C.A.

Portrane are at home to Y.M.C.A. in the second round of the Mills Cup, and, as they are generally formidable on their own ground, they should give their visitors a hard game.

Teams in the bottom half of the league table will be battling for points. Recent good wins point to a success for Malahide, Gaelic Athletic, Westport had a lively pack, and were also superior behind the scrum. P. Gill got both tries for Westport, and one was converted by P. Ryan. Harte scored for Monkstown.

WARD UNION HOUNDS

These hounds met at Donaghmore Cross-roads on Saturday. An outlier found in Ballintry went away for the Mayne, but turned sharply back through Ballintry. Hounds hunted him hard by Donaghmore, Ballintry, and continued to run fast through Kilrue and Ballrasna to the Nine-mile-stone. Crossing the Ashbourne road, they ran on by Donaghmore and Rapley to Greenogue, and, after hunting through Palmerstown and Whitestown, they ran up on the slag at Fieldstown, where a safe capture was effected.

On Wednesday, from Dunboyne, sport proved unsatisfactory. A fox was found in an untried slag, enlarged at Vesington, was left an outlier near Fairyhouse.

HUNTING APPOINTMENTS.

CROSS-COUNTRY.

Six teams have entered for the A.A.U.E. junior championship, to be decided to-morrow at Finglas, starting at 3.30. They are: Dublin, Dundalk, Terenure, Killiney, City and Suburban, and Civil Service.

Dunseverick, owned by Mr. C. Robinson, has had to be destroyed following injuries received in a gallop. He won the Ulster Grand National Handicap last year after running second to Astrologer in the Irish Cambridgeshire.

Playwright's Libel Action Withdrawn from Jury

MR. JUSTICE MAGUIRE, in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, withdrew from the jury the action of Donal A. O'Duffy (Don Alwyn), 29 Pembroke road, Dublin, against Independent Newspapers, Limited, and gave judgment for the defendant company, with costs. A stay of execution, pending an appeal, was refused.

Mr. O Duffy had claimed damages for alleged libel stated to have been contained in a criticism of his play, "Milk and Honey," in the first Independent of July 14th last. The play had been produced at the Gate Theatre, and Mr. O'Duffy stated that the criticism was an attack on his reputation and morals.

Mr. Justice Maguire said that he had failed to find in the critique anything in the nature of a personal attack on Mr. O'Duffy, or anything that took the criticism out of reasoned dramatic criticism as it was well understood.

Mr. O'Duffy, who had described himself as a Christian pacifist, conducted his own case, and Mr. J. A. Costello, S.C., Mr. Robert Hogan, S.C., and Mr. Owen Keane (instructed by Messrs. O'Connor and Dudley) appeared for Independent Newspapers, Limited.

On the conclusion of Mr. O'Duffy's case on Wednesday, counsel for Independent Newspapers, Limited, asked the judge to withdraw the action from the jury, submitting that the words complained of, in their ordinary and natural meaning, were incapable of bearing the innuendoes alleged by Mr. O'Duffy, and that there had been no evidence of unfairness in the comments.

Mr. Justice Maguire, giving his decision yesterday, ruled that there was no evidence to support the innuendoes that the words complained of meant that Mr. O'Duffy was an unbeliever in the truth of Christian doctrine, regarding religion based on Christian concepts as being fallacious and unimportant, and that he was a person antagonistic to the beliefs and practices of Irish Christian religions; that the play had been written by him as propaganda for the purpose of undermining the morals of Christian faith, and that he was anti-Christian and anti-God, and that he was an unbeliever in God, an advocate of free love, and communistic mode of living without God, and an unbeliever in the survival of supernatural, and was anti-Christian also an agnostic.

It was agreed that the subject matter of the criticism of the play, "Milk and Honey," was a matter of considerable public interest, public interest invited criticism, and Independent Newspapers, Limited, had been invited to send a critic, in the ordinary way, to express his views upon this play.

The position of Mr. Sears, the writer of this criticism, in the world of dramatic criticism was unchallenged, and the position of the Irish Independent newspaper as a great national newspaper, with its obligations and duties to the public, was also unchallenged. There was no allegation of malice, and there was no evidence of dishonesty or improper motive on the part of the defendants or Mr. Sears. There was no evidence of personal attack on Mr. O'Duffy. The criticism itself referred to Mr. O'Duffy as a well-meaning person, unfortunate enough to have missed the lessons of Scripture in this play, to so far as the critic was able to form an impression of it for himself.

There was no suggestion of any back ground, of previous condition between Mr. Sears and the author of this play. They did not know each other. The relations between the author of this play and Independent Newspapers, Limited, seemed to have been of a rather friendly nature, so far as the directors of the company were concerned.

There was continued Mr. Justice Maguire, nothing in the nature of a personal attack on the moral character of the plaintiff, or any attack on his character or his office. Accordingly, he felt that it was his duty to withdraw the case from the jury.

Agents' Tribute to Daily Newspapers

Bright, clean, modern shops, which will be sources of information both in news and culture are the post-war aim of the Irish Retail Newsagents', Booksellers' and Stationers' Association, Mr. J. Gogan, President, said at the annual meeting in Dublin last night.

News to-day, Mr. J. F. McEnerney, Hon. Secretary, told the newsagents, had become almost as essential as food, and it was regrettable that there still was a great shortage of Irish daily and evening papers. At no time in memory had it been so necessary that the public should get ample news, and from an authoritative source, in order that many vague and alarming rumours should be scotched at the earliest moment. There was no medium so effective as the daily newspaper, and the manner in which news was garnished and served up to the public was nothing short of a modern marvel.

Increased membership and a satisfactory financial position were reported. Anxiety was expressed concerning the newsprint position and the restrictions in size imposed on the Irish papers. Competition by newsboys and unsatisfactory deliveries of papers, were strongly complained of.

A tribute was paid by the Chairman to the officials of the Department of Supplies for their courteous reception of a deputation from the Association following a rumour of a further control of newsprint.

Early shop closing was welcomed by Mr J. J. Hart, who said that the Department of Supplies should be complimented upon it. They should, he added, ask now for an assurance that shop licensing would be undertaken.

Mr. Gogan was unanimously re-elected President, and Mr. E. O'Connor (Kerry) as vice-president. Miss M. Dunne was re-elected hon. treasurer, and Mr. McEnerney was re-elected hon. secretary. The trustees re-appointed were: Messrs. J. L. Keogh and J. P. Lane. Messrs. D. Bridgman and McEnerney were appointed members of the National Council.

Ban On Sunday Shows Remains

Demands for the removal of the "absurd ban on Sunday entertainment" were renewed in the British House of Commons last night.

Mr. Morrison, Home Secretary, was sympathetic, but cautious. He made it clear that unless it could be shown that Parliament would give a firm majority for such a proposal he was not prepared to advise the Government to reopen the question.

Sir Patrick Hannon (C., Moseley) declared that it was in the interests of masses of troops now walking about the streets, hopeless and helpless, and in the interests of young girls, that they should be able to get healthy enjoyment and recreation on Sunday afternoons.

German 'Plane Secret Disclosed

Secrets of the latest trends in German aircraft have been disclosed for the U.S. Army in a captured Junkers 88 bomber, recently flown to America, states Reuter, cabling from Washington.

The War Department says that the Army Air Force has found the key to the 'plane's versatility. It is equipped with a device for blowing racks and bombs loose in an emergency—hollow explosive-filled bolts used on external racks. Heated air from the engine to the wing leading edges overcomes ice hazards. The 'plane has a wide latitude of armament combinations. Quarters are badly cramped with the Germans trying to jam everything into the smallest possible space. Lack of meticulous machining in the engine housing and flight instruments is noticeable.

The 'plane was, apparently, designed for many tasks, ranging from high-altitude bombing to ground strafing, mine-laying and night fighting. It is, in the Army's words, "a rough and ready ship, but a 'plane to inspire respect at all times."

Rival Schemes for Limerick Gas Works

On July 2nd, 1941, he reported to the City Manager (Mr. J. J. Berkery) on the condition of the retorts.

He formed the opinion that the existing installation was long overdue for reconstruction.

This statement was made yesterday by Mr. F. K. Thomas, gas engineer, when he was further cross-examined at the inquiry into the administration of Limerick gas works by Mr. M. J. Ryan, B.C., for the City Manager.

The scheme of the City Manager, he said, was for an extension of the existing bench of retorts by two new retorts, and the construction of six. He suggested the installation of five 6-ton retorts on a separate bench. He advised the City Manager that a full service would not be possible while the retorts were under repair. He had no grievance because his scheme was not accepted.

Does the fact that your scheme was not accepted entitle you to go around with a sore head relating your grievances? I have not a sore head; I have my opinion.

Did it entitle you to go around belittling the City Manager? I have not belittled the City Manager, but he has belittled me.

In further answers, he said that when he made his report in July, 1941, he referred to the poor quality of the coal. The period coincided with the acute coal shortage. He denied that he was extravagant in using 530 tons of coal in October, 1941.

Beet Growers Ask Better Prices

Members of the Irish Sugar Beet Growers' Association yesterday asked the Minister for Agriculture (Dr. Ryan) for an increase in the price of beet for the present year on account of the increased cost of labour. Emphasis was laid on the fact that in recent years the average sugar content of beet was less than 17 per cent. The deputation asked that prices should be based on a 15½ per cent. sugar content.

The Minister undertook to give the points raised careful consideration.

A deputation from the Association also waited on the directors of the Irish Sugar Company regarding beet and pulp prices.

The directors agreed to alter the clause relating to pulp in order to make it conform with the procedure obtaining in previous years.

Beet seed growers also asked for an increased price for seed to be produced in 1944. The question of a bonus on the 1943 crop was also discussed.

Black-out Assault

Morley Richards, of the Daily Express, well-known in newspaper circles in Dublin, is the latest victim of a black-out assault in London. He was going home in the early hours of a recent morning when two men loomed up out of a doorway. One held him from the back, while the other struck him. Injuring him, and leaving him lying in the roadway, the two men then ran away.

Strike to Enforce Bonus

A number of men, members of the Irish Automobile Drivers' and Mechanics' Union, employed by Messrs. Lincoln and Nolan, Baggot street, Dublin, are on strike to enforce the payment of a bonus of 5s. per week to motor mechanics and 2s. 6d. to apprentices, permitted by the Minister for Industry and Commerce. It is the first strike of the kind to take place in Dublin.

The Oldcastle L.D.F. and the Garda Siochana provided Guards of Honour for Mr. de Valera, while the Oldcastle Band played the National Anthem.

Judgment for Doctor and Nurse

On the finding of the jury that they had not been negligent, the President (Mr. Justice Conor Maguire), in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, gave judgment for Dr. William Henry Lowe, Glenmore, Orwell Park, Rathgar, Dublin, and Nurse Ena Savage, Rotunda Hospital, Dublin, in an action brought against them by Thos. Kelly, Orwell Gardens, Rathgar, suing on behalf of his son, Stewart Kelly, aged two years and five months.

The action was for damages for injuries said to have been caused to the child shortly after his birth by his head and face coming into contact with a hot water bottle.

Dr. Lowe and Nurse Savage, in their defences, had denied negligence.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, B.C., Mr. Sean MacBride, S.C., and Mr. T. Doyle (instructed by Mr. W. Boyle Fawsitt), appeared for the boy. Mr. W. R. Carson, S.C. and Mr. E. C. Micks (instructed by Messrs Hayes and Sons), appeared for Dr. Lowe; and Mr. J. Costello, S.C., Mr. R. McGonigal, S.C., and Mr. T. J. Sweetman (instructed by Messrs. George D. Fottrell and Sons), for Nurse Savage.

GOVERNMENT NOTICES.

POST-WAR BUILDING.

The Government has decided in view of the difficult conditions likely to arise in the Building Industry in the period following the present emergency, to encourage the early start of building and constructional projects which are contemplated for that period.

It is a matter of great importance that the survey should be completed without delay and corporations, companies, industrial and commercial firms and private persons generally who intend to carry out building projects in the post-war period are accordingly invited to furnish the following preliminary information:—

1.—Name and address (Corporation, company, etc.).
2.—Nature of the project.
3.—Location.
4.—Approximate cost of the project.

The information supplied should indicate clearly any projects on which building operations are to be commenced immediately as the conclusion of the war. It is not intended to form a First Priority List and to consider admission to this List for priority of building immediately after the emergency only such projects as are at a stage when work could be commenced forthwith or such other projects as may be brought to that stage before a specified date. It would be essential in order to qualify for admission to the First Priority List that the Minister for Industry and Commerce should be assured in relation to any particular project that the final plans, specification and, where necessary, bill of quantities had been prepared and that the site had been acquired.

All communications should be sent to the Secretary, Department of Industry and Commerce, Kildare street, Dublin.

Another Link

The American assault on islands of the Marshall group appears to be progressing "according to plan." Early this week the attack was begun by powerful landing forces, for which a way had been prepared by intensive bombardment both from the air and from the guns of American warships. Strong opposition was encountered, but casualties are reported to have been light. Already the island of Roi has fallen, so that the most important airfields in the Marshalls are in the hands of the attackers. Namur, described as the key to the whole group, and the harbour at Kwajalein are also in Allied hands. Actions are progressing on several other islands in the Kwajalein atoll, and there is constant air support in the form of bombing attacks on installations in these and neighbouring islands. This attack on the Marshall islands is the first thrust against the inner ring of Japanese defences in the Pacific—the ring of which Truk, the vital naval base in the Caroline islands is the pivot. It is also the first encroachment on the territories that were held by Japan before her entry into the present war. The Marshall and Caroline islands have been in the possession of the Japanese for the last quarter of a century; their defences, accordingly, may be expected to be far more formidable than those which have had to be prepared, against time, in the last two years. If the latest landings are part of the "island-hopping" campaign, it must be admitted that this hop is a most notable one. Truk is less than 950 miles from the island of Roi: in other words, it is within the range of the American long-distance bombers which will begin to operate from Roi as soon as the airfields there have been repaired sufficiently—probably in a matter of days. The complete investment of the Marshall islands will be a difficult and, perhaps, a long business—though American spokesmen are optimistic about the duration of the campaign—but, if the Allied commanders achieve this objective, another link will have been forged in the circle around Truk. Secure footings have been obtained in New Guinea and New Britain; the Solomon and Gilbert islands are held; with the capture of the Marshalls the grip will be tightened. Presumably, the existence of a direct threat to Truk will compel the Japanese Navy to take the risk of a full-scale battle with the large naval forces which are in support of the American land armies. Upon the result of such an encounter the fate of these islands may depend.

The "Mayo Scheme"

The shortage of petrol and tyres may justify revolutionary expedients for the maintenance of transport in the twenty-six counties. So much may be argued in excuse for the Mayo scheme—which gives a monopoly of road, as well as of rail, transport to the Great Southern Railways Company—and its extension over, roughly, half the country. In normal times such a development would be condemned as undemocratic by every person who believed in individual freedom and private enterprise. It is right, however, that transport should be regarded as a national concern, and that the State should have power to restrict the use of the roads to vehicles and companies which are providing a useful and economic service. It is another matter that small concerns which have been run with efficiency and enterprise should be put out of business in order that one great monopolistic concern may be rid of competition against the alternative service that it proposes to offer. It is another matter that private traders should face the prospect of being prevented in the future from carrying their goods in their own lorries. Yet another, and a very serious matter, that the motor engineering firms, the garages and the petrol stations which have been supplying and "servicing" the thousands of independent lorries throughout the country may lose the greatest part of their business, as they must lose it when the one big transport company finds it more economical to buy its vehicles, tyres, petrol, oil and spare parts in bulk from one or two firms rather than from a variety of small dealers. There are grave fears that the monopoly will bring in its train a load of unemployment and of financial loss for the motor and allied trades, which already have been affected severely by the emergency. Will there be any gain for the rest of the general public? Will it have cheaper or more regular transport of its goods and persons under the monopoly? Reports from Kerry, which was one of the counties added to the Mayo scheme this week, suggest that a reduced service and a great deal of confusion were the first fruits of the monopoly. If it is true that, in other counties where the scheme is operating, the owners of private lorries have been permitted to continue to drive them—as agents, however, for the G.S.R.—there seems to be no obvious advantage to anyone apart from the company which now takes a part of the private owners' profits. The public has a right to demand figures showing exactly how much petrol has been saved as a result of the "Mayo scheme." It has a right to inquire why the G.S.R. has failed to fit its vehicles with producer-gas plants, which were forced by the Department of Supplies on private operators. It has a right to ask if better and more efficient services have been provided. It has a right to ask what increases have been made in road freight rates since the monopoly was established. Rationalisation of transport is not in itself a bad thing. There are grounds upon which the "Mayo scheme" can be defended. It is important, however, that the advantages and disadvantages shall be weighed, and that facts and figures shall be published, before any further moves against private enterprise are put into force.

Food

Mr. Lynn Doyle may be said to have broken new ground when, at the monthly luncheon of the Insurance Institute, he spoke on lunching. Eating, on the whole, is a subject which is not talked of in Ireland. It is felt to be rather bad taste—a deliberate stressing of the beast in man—to display any deep interest in food, and to regard it as a topic worthy of consideration and conversation. Food—we tend to think—is a regrettable necessity, the fuel on which our bodies run; but it is not more a matter for aesthetic contemplation than the petrol which we used to pour into our motor cars. Thus, while we idealise the artist, who creates pictures on which we look, and the musician, who creates music to which we listen, we relegate almost to the rank of manual labourers the chef, whose creations delight our sense of taste. One may suppose not unreasonably that it is, in fact, lack of thought which makes Ireland one of the least interesting countries for the discriminating eater. As the invaluable Guide Gastronomique Internationale remarked: "One finds in Ireland the best ingredients for an excellent cuisine—first-class meat, fish, butter and eggs—but, except in a few cases, gastronomy is little cultivated, and menus remain monotonous." The very existence of two untranslatable French words in that brief extract is significant. We Irish have all the ingredients for the best dishes on earth—yet the quality of our cooking is, on the whole, deplorable. That is the judgment of a presumably unprejudiced foreign observer. As Mr. Lynn Doyle mentioned, we need to learn how to eat intelligently. That does not mean necessarily to eat expensively, or to eat exotically. A simple baked potato, with a little butter, is one of the most delectable of foods; a thick steak, rich with juice, gives place to no escargots à l'alsacienne; and Limerick ham is a dish for which the gourmets of the world contend. These are our resources. In order to make right use of them we must cast off both our ignorance and our laziness.
